Historical/Biographical Notes

The Town of Douglas, Massachusetts has a very rich history. The town, originally named New Sherborn, was first settled in the early 1700s through grants provided by Sherborn, Massachusetts. There are discrepancies regarding the dates and the original acreage provided by Sherborn. The first known settler of Douglas was Ephraim Hill. The original settlers came to Douglas for agricultural abundance. In 1746, New Sherborn was renamed and incorporated as Douglas, Massachusetts after Dr. William Douglas, who promised the town a financial reward to name the town after him. There is no proof that Dr. Douglas ever kept his promise of financial reward.

From the incorporation of the town until the turn of the 20th century, Douglas was like most small agricultural towns. There were saw-mills, grist-mills, blacksmiths, shoe-shops, dry goods shops, and even a few textile mills. However, the one industry Douglas was known for at that time was the Douglas Axe Company, which was run by the Hunt Brothers. The Douglas Axe earned a world-wide reputation by winning awards and medals at the World's Fair in London and at the Paris and Vienna Expositions during the late 1890s. Beginning in the 1880s, William E. Hayward of Uxbridge, MA brought the woolen goods industry to Douglas. Hayward was shortly joined by Winfield S. Schuster of Pittsfield, MA. The Hayward-Schuster woolen mills were an essential part of the industry of Douglas for close to 100 years. Many of the townspeople were employed by the mills. The woolen mills were contracted by the United States military to provide woolen blankets to the soldiers during World War II. The Hayward-Schuster Mill was sold to Guilford of Maine, a high performance textile company, in 1984. The Douglas branch of Guilford of Maine closed its doors in the early 2000s. Around 2010, the mill became home to Classic Envelopes. There are also other small businesses and a garage that are run out of the mill. As of 2017, Douglas does not support a major industry. There are numerous restaurants, a couple of gas stations, and some other small businesses.

As of 2017, Douglas is home to five religious organizations. There is the First Congregational Church (1747), Douglas Methodist Church (1808), the Second Congregational Church (1834), St. Denis Catholic Church (1857) and the Douglas Camp Meetings (1875). Since the beginning of Douglas, there have been other religious organizations that have come in and out of town over brief periods. One of note was the Quakers, which came from Uxbridge, settled in South Douglas and were only here for a limited time, however, their cemetery still remains.

The first known education in Douglas began in 1748, with most schooling happening at home. In 1754 the first school-house was built. Douglas, at one point, had as many as 10 school districts. As of 2016, the Town of Douglas has four public schools that provide education for children from PreKindergarten (PK) to 12th Grade. The Primary School cares for children in PK, Kindergarten and 1st grade. The Elementary School is for the 2nd through 5th grade. 6th, 7th and 8th graders attend Douglas Middle School, while the High School is attended by 9th – 12th grade.

The Douglas State Forest was created through a state purchase of 1,245 acres in 1934. As of 2017, the State Forest is 5,525 acres. It is home to numerous trails, including the mid-state trails, parks, and other recreational areas. Douglas also has numerous ponds and lakes, both private and public, which many have their own rich history. And we cannot forget the Mumford River, which many of these bodies of water flow into.

The young men and women of Douglas have contributed to the military efforts of the United States since the Revolutionary War. Approximately 75 men served during the Revolutionary War, 250 soldiers fought in the Civil War, 64 during World War I, and over 350 from World War II.

There are many other aspects of Douglas history that have not been touched upon in this 2016.04, Town History brief overview.
